Gerhardt Bounces Back

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Three years ago the odds against Jack Gerhardt living — let alone working again — were staggering.

A bullet from a high-powered Japanese army rifle fired by a bird-hunting 17-year-old boy had plowed into the Sheriff's Department helicopter in which Gerhardt and Dave McIntyre were patrolling.

The slug passed through Gerhardt's scrotum, left leg, left arm and his left wrist.

"It was the day after Thanksgiving and I knew I was dying," Gerhardt reflects. "I was sitting in my own blood and my left arm was dangling like a rag doll."

Fortunately, the bullet missed pilot McIntyre.

He landed the "chopper" in a baseball field off Alpine Road in Portola Valley and Gerhardt was rushed to Stanford Medical Center by ambulance.

It was "touch-and-go" for Gerhardt for the next few hours. He had lost a lot of blood and was in surgery for three hours.

That rifle shot ended Gerhardt's career as a law enforcement officer, a career he wanted very much to continue.

Ironically, Gerhardt was not scheduled for duty on the day he was shot. He had swapped places with Deputy Sheriff Mike Preston.

Several operations, and years of physical therapy sessions later, Gerhardt is back working — but not as a police officer.

He never can be an active policeman again; the damage was too extensive.

Instead, Gerhardt is now the owner-operator of a one truck hauling company, appropriately named "Gerhardt Trucking."

The father of four children, Gerhardt has picked up the pieces of his life — business and social — and, according to the husky trucker, "I'm finally making it again."

Years ago, Gerhard and several other deputy sheriffs started a houseboat operation on Trinity Lake ("There were already too many houseboats on Shasta Lake.")

The group parlayed a single houseboat into a fleet of boats, ranging from six sleepers up to 10 sleeper houseboats.

The man fellow officers thought was a goner when they carried him out of that shot up helicopter on Nov. 24, 1972, survived several major operations, decided, "I did not want to be a basketcase all my life," has bounced back and proven "Where there's a will, there's a way."

A COMEBACK

Retired San Mateo County Deputy Sheriff Jack Gerhardt (seated in his truck) has made a startling comeback after being shot while riding patrol in a helicopter over Portola Valley three years ago. Inset photo shows Gerhardt as he appeared in uniform shortly before the 1972 shooting.

Assembly Speaker Visits

Possible Broadmoor Help

Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy has begun drafting legislation that could save the financially-plagued Broadmoor Police District from being dissolved and swallowed up by Daly City.

Meeting with community representatives Friday in Broadmoor, McCarthy listened for an hour to pleas for help and fears that Broadmoor soon would be gobbled up by Daly City.

Even the Local Agency Formation Commission's (LAFCO) past approval of piecemeal annexation of parts of Broadmoor by Daly City came under attack by some persons attending the session.

McCarthy, who splits the Daly City-Colma-Broadmoor area with Assemblyman Louis J. Papan, said he was in town to "listen to all sides of (this) issue."

Without some relief, Broadmoor will be broke within a few months, it was explained. That probably would be followed shortly by annexation to Daly City, McCarthy was told.

Money is the only thing that will save the district, McCarthy was told.

And the only way to get more money, is to change the current law that places a ceiling on how much taxes can be levied.

Some district officials want to double the property tax — to $1.50 per $100 of assessed valuation — in order to continue the district as it now exists.

Margaret Fleischer, secretary of the Broadmoor Property Ownerf Association, explained that 80 per ceno of BPOA members had expressed a desire to have their taxes increased in an effort to maintain the status quo in the community.

Peter McMillan, a police district commissioner, informed McCarthy that piecemeal annexation by Daly City had eroded the community's tax base to such an extent it is now on the brink of complete financial disaster.

"Currently there are a few individuals . . . that would prefer to annex to Daly City, thus fighting our proposed tax initiative," McMillan said.

McCarthy wanted to know how many property owners support the proposed doubling of the tax rate. He asked the group to circulate a survey that would encompass all sides of the argument and also point out, for the first time, the exact dollar amount of $1.50.

The weight of McCarthy's stand on the issue will hinge on the fairness of the wording of the petition's wording, the legislator told the group.

What McCarthy would refuse to consider is an "open end" type of law that would permit the district to automatically go back to property owners each time more money is needed, he said.

The purpose of such laws as SB 90, according to McCarthy, "is to try to put a cap on spending . . . inn(the state's) thousands of districts."

McCarthy's timetable for the proposed amendment to the Health and Safety Code is to submit a draft bill to the Policy Committee in early May. It then would be out of the House by late June and probably be considered and acted upon before the legislative session ends in September.

LAFCO still must make its decision on what to db with Broadmoor.

Recently, the LAFCO staff recommended that Broadmoor be given a "zero" sphere of influence.

This, many persons believd, would pave the way for eventual takeover of the community by Daly City.

Gerard Biagini, a homeowner, said the district needed something "more substantial than just raising (the taxes)." He apparently was asking for assurances that piecemeal annexation of Broadmoor would be stopped.

BROADMOOR MEETING

Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy discusses Broadmoor Police Protection District with a group of citizens last Friday, as Police Commissioner Peter McMillan takes notes.

Senior Citizens Lunch Program

More Money Needed

There is not enough food or money to feed all the senior citizens attending the Daly City nutritional lunch program, the City Council was told Monday.

Almost every day at least 10 elderly persons are turned away from the Lincoln Park Clubhouse where the meals are served, according to Julius Castellan, who is in charge of the program.

Castellan said last Saturday he managed to scrape together enough hot food to feed 136 persons. "But I still had to turn away 11 others."

The county, using federal monies, has decreed that Daly City shall serve only 120 lunches four times a week.

There are, however, far more senior citizens in need of a hot nutritional lunch, Castellan explained.

He asked the council to assist him in finding enough money to buy 20 more lunches.

Castellan, a senior citizen himself, figures he can make ends meet with a $50 per week supplemental allotment from the city until the county increases its allocation — possibly on July 1.

The extra money would be sufficient to buy another 20 meals, according to Castellan.

City Manager David Rowe said the city was unable to find any source of money to help Castellan.

Mayor Anthony Giammona, said he wanted a meeting set up between Castellan, the city and the county Board of Supervisors as soon as possible.

Informed by a staff member that this avenue had already been explored in the past and was found to be unproductive, Councilman Victor Kyriakis reminded those present, "It's an election year. We might succeed where we failed before."

THAT'S THE SPIRIT

Colma Fire Commissioner Ted Kirschner shows off the department's latest piece of firefighting equipment, guaranteed to lift the spirit of smokee eaters. The helmets are emblazoned with the "Spirit of '76" and are red, white and blue. The helmets, in honor of America's bicentennial celebration this year, are made by the Safety Supply Company . . . of Canada.

How to Confuse a Stranger

Want to thoroughly confuse a stranger in town?

Try to explain how to drive from Old Bayshore Boulevard in Brisbane to Skyline Boulevard in Daly City.

Here's how it would sound.

Heading westward, the motorist follows Guadalupe Canyon Parkway, which becomes Eastmoor Avenue, which becomes Westmoor Avenue.

And, just before the street names start swimming before the motorist's eyes, he runs into Skyline Boulevard.

The same bewildering situation can be found on several other main streets in the city.

Both the Mission Merchants Association and Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce want the city to do something about blending the street names into single names, wherever possible.

George Smith, representing the Mission Merchants, and Don Bevilacqua, from the Chamber of Commerce, asked that immediate steps be taken to correct the situation.

But Councilman Victor Kyriakis cautioned his fellow councilmen and the city staff to first conduct a survey of homeowners along those residential streets involved in the proposal.

"If we go ahead an hold a public hearing before we conduct a survey (of the some 200 homes affected), homeowners might think we already have made up our minds," Kyriakis said.

Mayor Anthony Giammona predicted there would be a "lot of opposition" to any street name changes in the residential areas.

It was expected the council Monday will move to have a public hearing on changing the name of Mission Street to El Camino Real, in an effort to match the Daly City thoroughfare with the remainder of the Peninsula.

Meanwhile, the staff will conduct a survey of residents along all other streets being considered for name changes.

The streets to be considered are Westmoor, Eastmoor, San Pedro Road, East Market, 87th, and School.

Beautifying Mission St.

Efforts are underway to beautify Mission Street in Daly City in time for the nation's birthday on July Fourth.

Around each of the thoroughfare's palm trees redwood planter boxes will be constructed and planted with red, white and blue "urbina" flowers. They look something like the primrose.

The "urbina" has a flowering life span of seven months, and should be around to ring in 1977.

Councilman Victor Kyriakis called the project "a short term bi-centennial effort."

Cost of the planters is estimated at $4.608.

SSF Safety Facility Discussion

If South San Franciscans are to consider the future of the planned Public Safety Facility on the June 8 primary ballot, the City Council must take action tonight.

On a long agenda, the council will hear a staff report on election proposals for the controversial police and fire departments complex.

A ballot proposition, if the council approves, will allow the city's voters to accept or reject the non-profit corporation finance method for the $12 million facility. The staff wants the issue on the June 8 ballot.

The council also is scheduled to consider a staff proposal to purchase property owned by Kaiser Industries at Spruce and Grand avenues as an alternative to building the Public Safety Facility at Grand and Chestnut avenues.

Much of tonight's action concerning the facility, however, will be the result of a study session Tuesday night.

The City Council was to hear staff reports concerning the purchase of the two Kaiser buildings, the hospital and clinic. In the past week, the city staff has been compiling cost estimates for the possible remodeling of those two buildings to meet the needs of the police department.

The future of the city's fire department will still be in limbo. Chief William Toellner has said he is seeking alternatives for

Jury Acquits Lawrence

A jury today acquitted Charles C. Lawrence of murder and assault in the Daly City baby killing case.

The verdict, delivered to Superior Court Judge Gerald E. Ragan shortly before noon, sparked an emotional scene on the second floor of the Hall of Justice when Lawrence's mother, Ellen, tearfully exchanged hugs with jurors.

Jurors said that they discounted the testimony of Lawrence's 19-year-old girlfriend, Alma Elaine Ayala, because she told police five different stories of what happened the evening of Nov. 28.

One juror said that some believed that police planted the idea in her mind that Lawrence was the assailant.

Miss Ayala, beaten so badly that doctors initially thought there was no hope, suffered severe skull injuries causing the removal of one-fourth of her skull.

At the trial, testifying from a wheelchair, she tearfully identified Lawrence as her attacker.

She and he shared an apartment for about two weeks before the incident with Miss Ayala's baby, Carlos Espinoza.

Lawrence testified at the trial that he found the victims in the blood-splattered apartment when he returned home from work. He was a security guard at the Hunter's Point Naval Shipyard in San Francisco.

Lawrence appeared relieved by the verdict. Sheriff's deputies whisked him back to jail — but for the last time, as Judge Ragan ordered his release.

The procedure for releasing him was expected to take several minutes.

At the trial, Nolan established through Daly City Police Detective Dennis Prator that Eisa Ayala had given several accounts of what had happened.

Among them:

• "She said that she was hit by a truck."

• "She told me a co-worker of Charles had attacked her. She mentioned blackmail, and that he did this because she wouldn't pay."

• "She told me Charles killed her baby and attacked her with a rifle butt and stabbed her with a screwdriver."

Nolan also introduced during the defense testimony from Lawrence that his ex-girlfriend was jealous of his relationship with Miss Ayala. But Lawrence did not contend that the ex-girlfriend committed the crime.

Prator said that he investigated the name which Miss Ayala purportedly mentioned in conjunction with a blackmail, or as a co-worker of Lawrence, but could find no such person.

Death by Poisoning Awaits Pets

By JANET REINKA

Item: About 1 p.m. Feb. 3. Col. John A. White of Millbrae notices that his frisky 8-month-old terrier "Admiral" seems ill. Suddenly, the dog falls convulsing to the kitchen floor, his legs extended straight out.

White rushes the quivering puppy to a veterinarian, who at once recognizes the symptoms and goes to work to save him. By 7 the next morning the dog is dead.

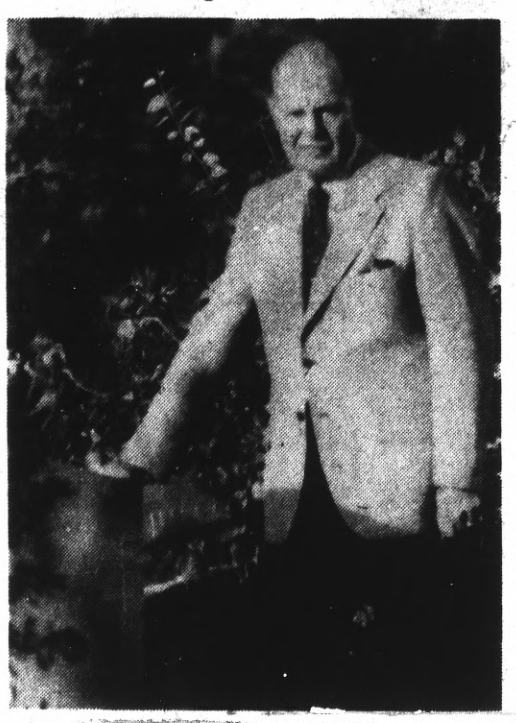

During the autopsy the veterinarian empties the dog's stomach of 4½ cups of gopher bait.

Item: Five dogs recently are poisoned in a Hillsborough neighborhood, two belonging to a little girl. One lives. Threee dogs also are poisoned during recent months in the Fairmont area of Pacifica.

Peninsula Humane Society officers are stationed in the neighborhoods hoping to observe the poisoners in the act. Reward signs offering $1,000 for information are posted. No one calls and there are no suspects.

Item: A professional gardener admits privately that he has poisoned another dog, again because the homeowner did not keep the animals away from baited gardens. A Daly City woman dumps paraffin chunks of rat poison provided by the fire department into her back yard. Her dog eats the poison. The dog's capillaries collapse and it literally bleeds to death.

Item: This year thousands of pets will come in contact with chemicals that, of a sufficiently strong dosage, can hurt or kill them. Cats will walk through puddles of motor oil and lick it off their fur or they will drink from toilet bowls cleaned with any of the widely-available cleaners.

COL. JOHN A. WHITE
Dangerous territory for pets

Owners will spray dogs and cats with fly and insect sprays not intended for use around pets. Well-intentioned pet owners will poison their cats by giving them aspirin. Dogs and cats will lick off their coats poisonous turpentine daubed on by their owners trying to remove paint splatters.

The household pet faces much more danger of being poisoned by his best friend than by a malicious outsider. Both the accidental and deliberate poisonings have one factor in common: They are equally senseless.

But poisoning isn't the most prevalent danger to pets. Of the thousands of pets a veterinarian treats during a year, only a fraction have been poisoned, deliberately or otherwise. Of the 10,000 pets Dr. Ernest A. Siegal of South San Francisco, treats, for example, only about six a year are poisoned, most of them accidentally.

"It's a very very small percentage that get poisoned accidentally. If we had an average of one a month,that would be unusual," he said.

Nevertheless, pet poisoning is a very emotional issue when it occurs, as it has in Hillsborough and Pacifica neighborhoods, or when a well-meaning pet owner inadvertently poisons his own pet. In the latter case, the pet owner blames himself for being careless. In the other, he often blames — and even confronts — a neighbor with whom he has been at odds for a long time.

In the case of White, neighbors had complained about Admiral's barking. According to Dr. William H. Hand, Admiral's veterinarian, whose office is in San Mateo, there is a spate of such poisonings each spring, when people start working in their yards.

"People get riled up when somebody defiles their lawns," he said. "A lot of poison is just lying around — snail poison, rat poison or gopher bait. It's there and dogs get into it."

Hand, an ecologist, thinks the kind of garden chemicals used to maintain the average well-manicured lawn in San Mateo County pose too much danger to be used around pets.

"You have to decide whether you want a yard or pets," he said flatly.

Most pets are poisoned when homeowners allow them to enter yards recently baited by professional gardeners, according to Robert E. Shreve, the Humane Society's director of animal control.

Shreve characterized as "very weak" the person who deliberately poisons a pet.

"Such a person wouldn't have the common courtesy to go up and say "your pet is bothering me.' He wouldn't have the courage to take the legal avenues and report, for example, a neighbor's barking dog," he said.

Such poisonings pose an additional hazard. A child may find the bait — usually strychnine-laced meat tossed into the back yard — before the pet.

Poison Prevention Tips Told

The best prevention against your pet being poisoned, according to the California Veterinary Medical Association, is to keep him in the yard unless he's out on a leash.

Know the danger of household and garden chemicals and keep them out of your pet's reach. Be aware of the potential hazard to pets when you use snail poison in the yard. Animals have been known to be poisoned several weeks after baits have been put into the garden, the CMVA says.

If your pet swallows poison, call your veterinarian at once. If you know what poisoned the pet, take the poison, the container or label with you to the veterinarian's office.

No antidote exists to snail bait poison, but administered soon enough, Vitamin K can check rat poison. A general anesthetic is the antidote to gopher bait.

If the pet dies and you want an autopsy performed, the Peninsula Humane Society will arrange one. The cost of the lab work is about $15 and the autopsy between $35 and $75, a spokesman said.

Usually when the Humane Society does what it has in Pacifica and Hillsborough — post reward signs, met with alarmed pet owners and staked officers in the neighborhoods — the poisonings stop.

Since pet poisoning is so difficult to prosecute — the suspect almost has to be witnessed setting out bait and an autopsy must be performed on the pet — the Peninsula Humane Society has never made an arrest in such a case, Shreve said.

"Usually there are many suspects," he said. "We keep a file of complaints about pets and the people who complained are the first suspects."

The maximum penalty under the state penal code is six months in jail and a $500 fine.

Veterinarians occasionally complain to county rodent control officers that pets have been poisoned by chewing on blocks of paraffin containing an anti-coagulant poison used since 1967 to kill "wharf rats" migrating northward on the Peninsula.

The bait, hidden in creek bed underbrush and sewers, is examined for canine teeth marks. According to Philip A. Duffy, a county vector control specialist, there has never been a dog killed in this way in the county. The Humane Society also says it has never found a reported case where a dog proved to have been poisoned by the rat poison.

"If a dog isn't fed too well and he's too inquisitive he might chew on the blocks," Duffy said. "But he has to consume it over about a week for it to kill him.

"When veterinarians know we've been poisoning in an area, they accuse us if a dog's been poisoned. But I would say the poison doesn't constitute any hazard to pets."

Hand disagrees. "Every year the county sends out letters to the veterinarians thanking them for their cooperation in the rodent control program. I think they're thanking us for our silence.

"The county health department is literally poisoning cats and dogs."

Whether Hand's assertion is true is difficult to ascertain. Veterinarians recently were required to start reporting gunshot wounds but no such law exists for poisoning cases. Wild or uncared for animals simply go off and die.

"It's like a case of child abuse," according to Chandler R. Meloy, public relations director of the California Veterinary Medical Association, which represents about 2,450 members. "A responsible owner will take the animal to the veterinarian.

"Our organization hasn't had enough complaints (about rat poisoning) to warrant a statewide alert."

additional fire department administrative space in case the council or the city's voters reject the Public Safety Facility.

Also on the agenda are two items requested by new Councilman William Borba at the council installation March 9 — requests that severance pay for the city's top administrative employes be rescinded and that the city hire an independent auditor to examine city finances.

In the second matter, City Manager Ed Alario said the most recent city audit was completed in 1975 by Ledwith, Chagaris and Co. of South San Francisco.

Although not listed on the agenda, one councilman said he is certain Councilman Borba intends to move for firing Alario.

Alario's job performance was criticized by a few candidates in the City Council race.

But asked if he will request that Alario be fired, Borba would only say, "We will have to wait and see."

Noise Monitor Plan Is Killed by Supervisors

A proposed noise monitoring program on San Bruno Mountain to determine the effect of aircraft taking off over the mountain from San Francisco International Airport was killed Tuesday on a 3-to-1 vote of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

County Planning Director Donald A. Woolfe said the $8,000 to $10,000 study to determine the community noise equivalent level (CNEL) "may well be ill-conceived" and the information obtained of "marginal value" in assisting the board in making a decision on the proposal for community development on the mountain.

Woolfe said he had been informed by Maurice Garbell, a San Francisco noise consultant, that the noise level should not be a determining factor in the board's decision on whether to approve a county general plan amendment which would permit Visitacion Associates to develop its Crocker Hills project on the mountain.

Woolfe said he and Garbell believe a continuing noise monitoring program is necessary in the entire North County area if findings are to be effective.

The board originally had authorized a seven-day noise monitoring of aircraft taking off over the mountain last month during one of its hearings on the development proposal.

Woolfe said that not only would such a short period of monitoring be of marginal value, but it would take an additional four to six weeks to analyze the results and prepare a report.

He said Garbell would be willing to make an informal estimate of the CNEL on the basis of his expertise, and that the cost would run $3,000 to $4,000.

"If we don't (make a noise study) there will be complaints the EIR (environmental impact report) is not adequate, and if we do, that it (the CNEL study) is not sufficient," commented Supervisor John M. Ward.

"It's an awkward situation," he added. "We're vulnerable to some kind of attack."

The supervisor noted the "little turnout" before the board "indicates the attitude of each side . . . there is not a strong feeling we should go ahead."

Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. said he disagreed.

"It is important from my point of view that I get every miniscule of information," he said.

Bacciocco said he had heard Garbell was "timid" on the subject because people have accused him of collusion with airline pilots to fly low over the mountain. However, the supervisor added,he had been assured that there was no such accusation.

County Eyes Pools At Canada, Skyline

A study to determine the feasibility of the county and the San Mateo Community College District joining the developing Olympic swimming and diving complexes at Skyline and Canada colleges was endorsed Tuesday by the Board of Supervisors.

County Parks and Recreation Director John T. Brook Jr. said preliminary studies made by the county and college district staffs indicate an indoor aquatic complex could be built at Skyline College at a cost of $2,107,500 and an open aquatic facility developed at Canada at a cost of $1,035,000.

Brook said his report resulted from the board's action of last June requesting the Parks and Recreation Department to pursue with the college district possibility of developing an aquatics complex following abandonment of the complex proposed for a Belmont location.

Glenn P. Smith, chancellor of the college district, reported to the supervisors that the district's board of trustees has not taken a stand on the proposal.

"They are asking the same questions regarding financing," the chancellor said. "We want to see if interest is sufficient in both entities to proceed."

In his report, Brook said that the college district and the county could enter a joint powers agreement to finance development and operation of the two aquatic complexes on a 50-50 basis. The college district would receive credit for providing the locations and attendant facilities, such as parking.

Other funding sources mentioned by Brook include the county's park and open space fund, county revenue sharing funds, the county property tax and state or federal grants that exist or might become available through future legislation.

Brook said the pools would be utilized for AAU and Olympic style competition, noting that persons training for those type of events now must go outside the county to find suitable facilities.

Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald was not enthusiastic about planning for two aquatic complexes, noting the past failure of such proposals for Coyote Point and Belmont.

"I like to implement things," the supervisor stated. "I'm concerned about going off on a tangent . . . start with one."

Larry Armstrong, executive director for the Governmental Research Council, asked if the board would be willing to submit a proposal for construction of the pools to the electorate.

He said the development cost would equal 12.5 cents on the tax rate and that revenues would pay only 16 per cent of the annual operating costs.

Use of the proposed facilities would be split between educational and recreational use, with the planners estimating use of the two pools at a total of 100,000 persons annually.

Board members acknowledged the need for the facilities but said they should be considered in priority with other recreation needs in the county.

"We shouldn't delude anyone," Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. said, "there are other considerations."

Board Chairman William H. Royer said he feels the county has done a "good job" in its park and recreation programs, adding, however, that there are "obvious deficiencies, and this is one of them."

As the board approved referring the feasibility study to the Parks and Recreation Commission and to the citizens committee soon to be named to evaluate the parks and recreation element of the county master plan, Royer commented "We don't want to give the idea that we are starting on something. We hope it will work but there's no guarantee."

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss . . . and grow more hair.

THE GOURMET By Petrini's Presents

CHICKEN AND DUMPLINGS

3½ to 4 lb. stewing chicken cut into serving pieces. Place cut up chicken on a rack in a heavy kettle, add giblets, 4 or 5 cups chicken base or stock, 1 med. size onion, carrot, celery stalk, and a sprig of thyme. Cover and simmer gently 3 to 4 hours or until meat begins to loosen from bones. Add more chicken stock if needed. During the last 20 min. of cooking skim off excess fat and add 1 tsp. salt. Now use the following dumpling recipe:

¼ tsp. bouquet of garni beef • 1/8 tsp. salt • ⅓ cup milk plus 2 tbls. • ½ tsp. parsley • 1 cup biscuit mix • ¼ tsp. sugar.

Combine all ingredients except biscuit mix. Mix well and stir into biscuit mix to make a soft dough. Drop spoonfuls onto chicken and replace cover tightly and simmer 20 min. without lifting cover; arrange chicken on a platter; surround with dumplings. Makes 8 dumplings. Serves 4 to 6 people.

Twirling Champion Will Be Featured in Daly City

The Daly City Recreation Department announces that Johnny Vargas, 1975 Junior National Twirling Champion, will be the guest performer for the Dazzlers' Achievement Night, March 18 in the Westlake Community Center at 7:30 p.m.

Johnny is the son of Mr. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Var- San Pablo, and is thirteen years old. Among his titles include: Western States competition on Southwestern States competition and honors as Northern California State Boys' Champion. In 1973, he won the Junior Boy National Champion Title, Certificate of Merit and was featured in the edition of "Who's Who in Baton."

The public is invited to attend the program which will also feature the Junior and Sencor Corps of the Daly City Dazzlers, under the instruction of Carol Craven and Mary Jane Raffo.

For further information, call 992-5356.

ROTARY PROJECT
Daly City Rotarians Mel Lichtman and John Bundros, advisors, with Junior Achievement members Michels Ascenaux and Kathy Freston, who with other members are preparing metal stays with handpainted bicentennial decorations.

Rotarians Aid DC Junior Achievement

Junior Achievement for high school youth is supported by the Rotary Club of Daly City. The house center is located at 782 Niantic St. A year ago the house was renovated, with the interior reconstructed for Junior Achievement use by Rotary members.

There are six J.A. youth groups which hold meetings once a week. Each group is sponsored and guided by a business or professional organization.

These are the Rotary Club, two groups by United Airlines, the P.G.&E., Pacific Telephone and the accounting firm of Peat, Marwich, Mitchell and Westbox.

Each group is engaged in making and selling certain items or goods. This involves the youth in the concepts and practice of profit and loss, investments, accounting and business expenses. These J.A. youth groups pay for the house rent, taxes, utilities and upkeep.

The group is currently preparing and selling metal trays decorated with hand painted pictures depicting the American Bi-Centennial. The group also makes and sells scenic pictures set on wooden plaques for wall or table decoration.

No Last-Minute Filings

There were no last-minute surprises Friday as the filing period ended for all contests but one supervisorial race on the San Mateo County ballot in the June 8 primary election.

There will be contested elections for all three seats at stake on the County Board of Supervisors and for two positions on the Southern District Municipal Court bench.

The filing period for the Fifth Supervisorial District seat was extended to Wednesday at 5 p.m., County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church reported, because the incumbent, Jean Fassler, did not file for re-election.

State law requires that if an incumbent has not filed for re-election by the filing deadline, the filing period must be extended five days.

Those who have filed for the position now held by Mrs. Fassler are Fred Lyon of El Granada, an attorney; McRobert L. Stewart, a lumber company manager and a member of the Daly City Council, and Charles Carter of Kings Mountain, owner of a Half Moon Bay restaurant.

Earl Crockett, a research analyst and chairman of the South Coast Committee who announced his intention to seek election after Mrs. Fassler revealed she would not be a candidate, has changed his mind.

Crockett said that he desires to continue with the many projects presently underway concerning the coastside, and feels that if he took the time to run it would "take away from the work I am doing."

James V. Fitzgerald of San Bruno, dean of the Board of Supervisors with more than 15 years in the position, will face competition in the First District from another San Brunan in his quest for re-election to a fifth term.

Opposing Fitzgerald is Richard Griffith, a postal clerk and a member of the San Bruno City Council.

William H. Royer of Redwood City, seeking re-election to a second term on the board from the Fourth District, is being challenged by Esther Rascon of Redwood City, a community worker for the Department of Health and Welfare and a member of the County Economic Opportunity Commission.

It will be a six-way race among Judge Roy W. Seagraves and five challengers seeking his position on the Southern District Municipal Court bench.

Judge Seagraves, a Menlo Park resident, was appointed to the bench in 1962 by then-Gov. Edmund G. Brown Sr. He ran unopposed for election in 1964 and for re-election in 1970.

Five attorneys, however, have opened campaigns seeking to oust the veteran jurist.

Those who will oppose Judge Seagraves are Harold F. Francis, Gordon L. Rockhill, both of Redwood City; Lewis L. Moore of San Carlos, Robert Bishop of Woodside, and V. Gene McDonald of Foster City.

McDonald is taking advantage of a section of the Government Code applicable only to San Mateo and six other counties which allows a candidate to seek election in any Municipal Court in the county without being a resident of that district. McDonald's home is in the Central Municipal Court District.

In order to win in the primary election, a candidate will have to receive more than 50 per cent of the votes cast for the office. If no candidate wins more than 50 per cent of the vote, then the two receiving the highest number of votes will face a runoff in the Nov. 2 general election.

In the other Southern District Municipal Court race, Judge Thomas M. Smith of Woodside, appointed to the bench in 1973, is facing competition in his bid for election to a six-year term.

John R. Sherman of Menlo Park, who is city attorney for San Carlos and practices law in South San Francisco, will oppose the incumbent in the primary.

In the county's 11th Congressional District, incumbent Leo J. Ryan of Belmont, a Democrat, will face competition in seeking nomination as the party's candidate.

Opposing Ryan for the Democratic nomination will be John J. McGuire of Pacifica, an attorney and a teacher at Alta Loma Junior High School in South San Francisco.

Robert A. Jones, a Belmont city councilman, is without competition for the Republican nomination, as is Nicholas W. Kudrovzeff of Pacifica, an American Independent Party candidate.

Republican Congressman Paul N. McCloskey of Menlo Park also will face nomination competition for his 12th District seat.

Opposing him for the party's nomination will be Leola C. Haws of Palo Alto, a real etate saleswoman and former resident of the Montara area.

David V. Harris of Menlo Park, former Stanford University student body president and ex-husband of singer Joan Baez, is unopposed for the Democratic nomination in the 12th District, as is Joseph D. Cooney, a Menlo Park chemical engineer, who is the American Independent Party candidate.

Republican incumbent Dixon Arnett of Redwood City is the only candidate of any party seeking nomination for the 20th District State Assembly seat he holds.

Democratic incumbent Victor Calvo of Santa Clara County is the sole candidate for the 21st Assembly District seat he holds. A portion of the district extends into the East Palo Alto-East Menlo Park area of San Mateo County.

In the county's 19th Assembly District, incumbent Leo J. Papan of Daly City is his party's only candidate for nomination. Seeking the Republican nomination is Dorothy D. Adams of Daly City, a trustee of the Jefferson Elementary School District. Joseph W. Kerska of Brisbane is the American Independent Party candidate.

Democratic Assemblyman Leo McCarthy of San Francisco filed his nomination papers for re-election to the 18th District Assembly seat in San Francisco.

In uncontested local judicial races, incumbent Superior Court Judges Lyle R. Edson, Alan W. Haverty and Robert E. Carey are seeking election to six-year terms, as are Judges James O. Miller and Charles Becker in the Northern Municipal Court District, and Thomas B. Caldwell in the Central Municipal Court District.

Pay Pact Can't Be Revoked

By JANET PARKER

City Atty. John Noonan said the South San Francisco City Council may not legally rescind a severance pay agreement with top-level city management personnel.

Noonan said that severance pay is part of a binding contract with unclassified personnel, which includes the city manager, his two assistants and department heads.

The three-year contract was approved by the City Council effective July 1, 1975, and will not expire until June 20, 1978.

"Neither party can unilaterally recind that contract," Noonan said.

The city attorney's ruling followed Councilman William Borba's request that the new City Council rescind the severance pay agreement.

At council installation ceremonies Tuesday night, Borba asked that the item be placed on the March 17 City Council agenda.

Borba said he wanted severance pay for top-level personnel eliminated before the council discusses firing any employes who would be eligible for the funds.

City Manager Ed Alario, whose own job might be at stake, said the council approved severance pay when it adopted a memorandum of understanding covering unclassified salaries and other items.

The city manager, if fired, would receive three months salary, or approximately $8,425 in severance pay.

Department heads and assistants to the the manager would receive one month salary, or approximately $2,450.

Unclassified employes are not entitled to a public hearing if fired by the City Council, Alario said.

Noonan said that the only way the severance pay provision of the unclassified personnel contract could be eliminated would be if representatives for both the employes and the City Council agreed.

The council had approved a three-year contract, although in previous years one and two-year contracts had been accepted.

Councilman Borba said Thursday he was not aware that it would be illegal for the council to rescind severance pay.

He said he hasn't discussed the issue with the city attorney.

But, he said, some kind of action must be taken by the City Council before any top-level management personnel are fired.

Borba had said throughout his council campaign he would consider firing Alario. Other top management positions have been discussed by individual councilmen for possible eliminations.

"I don't want any of these people to have a free ride on the taxpayers money," Borba said.

Mayor Leo Padreddii said he agrees with Borba's request.

In fact, Padreddi and Councilman Terry Mirri several months after the memorandum of understanding was adopted attempted to rescind the severance pay provision.

The were unable to obtain the vote of one more councilman and a motion to rescind severance pay was defeated, 2-3.

With Borba, however, the council now would have the three votes necessary to cancel the agreement if it were legal to do so.

There also now is some question as to whether Director of Finance Stanley Bara is entitled to severance pay. His position is included in the severance pay agreement.

Bara was informed by the city manager in February that his position will be deleted form the 1976-77 budget and he no longer will be employed by the city after June 30.

Noonan said the deletion of Bara's position from the budget raises a question of when individual termination of an employe actually occurs.

Alario said he believes a person given five-months notice shouldn't be entitled to severance pay.

The rights of mental patients!

This may become the next battle cry of the reformers of California. Already the courts are full of appeals that raise questions regarding the conditions of mental institutions. The use of drugs without the patient's consent, the practices of psychiatrists and many others are being studied.

As the result of a Florida case, the United States Supreme Court ruled that "non-dangerous mental patients could not be confined involuntarily without being treated."

But what is "non-dangerous" and what constitutes "treatment"? In California the 1969 Lanterman-Petris-Short Act provides that "no one can be confined involuntarily unless the court declares him a danger to himself, or others, or gravely disabled — that is unable to provide food, clothing or shelter for himself."

"But," writes Susan Lattwin in "Coast" magazine, "even L-P-S falls short of what civil libertarians and many defense attorneys would like.

"Its protective wings fail to provide due process for three categories of mental cases: those declared by a court to be mentally-disordered sex offenders, those incompetent to stand trial, or those guilty by reason of insanity. These defendants may be committed to a state hospital prison," without their consent.

Susan Lattwin warns that reformers are going to question involuntary treatment by psychiatrists, the use of psychosurgery and especially the so-called drug therapy. She points out that California's L-P-S gives patients the right to refuse lobotomy and shock treatment but it does not give them the right to know that they can refuse or guarantee that they be able to refuse.

To "put some teeth in the patients' rights law, movement activists approached San Jose's John Vasconcellos and asked him to introduce a bill that would require informed consent from the patient for all forms of brain surgery, for shock treatment or even chemotherapy.

The results produced a cry from some medical doctors and many people in the drug industry. The resulting battle is still waging.

Still another question being raised is the patient's right to avoid such treatments as group therapy sessions and being confined without his consent. In her article Susan Lattwin names both groups and people who are entering the fight for the rights of mental patients.

Among these, she reveals, are people who have been patients and people who are relatives of patients. They are, she writes, "raising some disturbing and radical questions."

The Lattwin article is found in the February 1976 issue of "Coast" magazine which may be found in most public libraries. It should be widely read for we shall hear more about the way California treats its mental patients.

SM Foundation Announces Grants

The San Mateo Foundation announces the largest grant in its 12-year history — $15,570 given to the Volunteer Bureau of San Mateo County.

The money will support an additional staff person to work with college students at the three community colleges. This work would include placing students in community service positions, follow up counseling and support so the student and the community benefit.

Walden School in San Mateo received $2,240 for its work with young people that the public schools cannot reach. $3,500 went to expand professional staff for the Big Sister program in San Mateo County.

The foundation makes grants to public and private non-profit groups on a quarterly basis and welcomes inquiries. It is located in Burlingame.

Scholarships To Be Given

The Italian Catholic Federation, a California-based religious and fraternal organization with 30,000 members, announced this week that 50 schlarships will be awarded to Italo-American students enrolling in college this fall.

Scholarships will be awarded to students from all parts of California, Nevada and Chicago.

Students interested in applying for the scholarships may do so by writing to the Italian Catholic Federation at 1801 Van Ness Avenue, Suite 330, San Francisco, California, 94109.

Jefferson Adult School— State's 'Well-Kept Secret'

Last year the industrial giants of America spent nearly two billion dollars on physical education programs for their employees.

Why? Because corporation executives are well-aware that healthy employees mean less absenteeism, and therefore, more profit. If many California businessmen had only known about the state's well-kept secret, they could have given their employees the same programs for practically nothing.

Last year young men and women residents spent millions of hard-earned dollars preparing for careers by paying expensive private secretarial, paraprofessional, and trade schools for training.

Why? Again, because they were unaware that they might have had the same instruction from highly respected educators at a small fraction of the price — a couple of dollars.

This wellspring of inexpensive learning, until now vested with the status of a semi-secret organization, is the adult education program run by the State of California. One of these programs exists in Daly City — The Jefferson Adult Education Division.

What's the catch? There is none. Want to take physical education? Be a legal or medical secretary? Be an artist? seamstress? Get a high school diploma? Play a musical instrument? Be a salesperson? Writer? Almost anything? Forget the expensive private schools.

What do you do if you want to take one of these many programs? Very little, follow the outline listed below:

1. Get a class schedule (if you did not receive one in the mail) from these adult schools in the Jefferson High School District — Serramonte, Westmoor, Terra Nova, Oceana and Jefferson.
2. Decide what you want to take.
3. Show up at the class.
4. Pay the $2 tuition.

The new quarter starts March 22.

Overhead Cables to Be Buried

The allocation by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. of $12.5 million to underground existing overhead electric distribution lines in 1976 was announced last week by A.F. Vial, Northern San Mateo County District manager.

This brings to $93.5 million the total budgeted by PGandE for underground conversion projects since the program began in 1968, Vial said. The work is done throughout PGandE's Northern and Central California electric service area.

The 1976 allocation for Daly City is $111,600.

Undergrounding projects are selected by the City Council after public hearings. "This agency determines the streets and areas, with highest priorities assigned to major thoroughfares and places with civic, scenic or historical interest," Vial said.

PTA Council Annual Tea Is Scheduled

Jefferson Council PTA will hold its traditional Honorary Service Award Tea, between 2-4 p.m., March 21 at 101 Lincoln Ave., Daly City.

Guests will include superintendents of area schools, city councilmen and other honored guests — past recipients of Daly City- Colma PTA Honorary Continuing Service Awards. National awards of service and dedication in the past have gone to Miss Marge Tobias and Mrs. Everett Haegney, long-time devotees to the community's children.

Chairwoman of this year's affair is Mrs. Shirley Parker and her committee, with decorations by Mrs. Nancy Thomas (Nancy).

Presiding will be Mrs. Betty Schultz.

Postmaster General Details Woes

By RICK SULLIVAN

Postmaster General Benjamin Franklin Bailar came to San Francisco Friday to convince Californians that the Postal Service is in "very, very grim financial shape," and that a doubling of federal subsidies is needed if even the current level of postal service is to be maintained.

The balding, 41-year-old chief executive announced at a press conference before his scheduled speech to the Commonwealth Club, "Our financial situation is extremely grave and we are operating at a massive deficit. We are very concerned that service will have to be reduced and we'll have to keep a closed line on staffing, if we do not get additional public appropriations."

Bailar said the federal government now contributes about $1 billion — about 12 per cent of the Postal Service budget.

Bailar said that the current appropriation must be doubled, "if we are to deal effectively with the financial crisis we face today." He said the Postal Service tries to cut costs in areas that will not diminish the levels of service, emphasizing that recent cutbacks in mail deliveries in New York and in other Southern cities would have no effect on the Western states.

"In many of those cities mail is delivered two or three times a day. That practice was discontinued in the West some years ago," said Bailar.

Bailar continued: "I hope that no further cuts will directly affect the West, but when you begin staffing as closely as we are doing now you create some risks to service."

Asked what cutbacks would be made if additional federal funds are not appropriated, Bailar said he wasn't certain but that the Postal Service might have to consider eliminating Saturday deliveries.

Bailar said he would "put off as long as possible" more rate increases because they decrease volume.

"I will continue to push for more public funds, because I believe that a boost in the postal rates would ruin the Postal Service.

"The higher prices would accelerate the decline in volume and leave a substantial portion of our fixed costs to spread over fewer pieces of mail and the vicious cycle would continue."

Asked why the Postal Service does not then decrease rates, Bailar replied: "It's my belief that a reduction in the postal rates would cost more loss in revenue than it would provide in additional volume."

Bailar detailed numerous reasons why the Postal Service is suffering financially but cited inflation and the recent decrease in mail volume as the main ones.

Supervisors Hear Cost-Saving Ideas

By BOB HEMINGWAY

The recommendation of the Citizens Task Force on County Government Operations that the county close the Camp Glenwood detention facility for boys has been referred to the County Manager's and Probation office by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

The Task Force, asserting that the camp is "under a cloud" because of cost, declining population and the mix of youngsters sent there, is proposing that some boys be relocated at Hillcrest Juvenile-Home and that others sent to foster homes or placed in the Probation Department's day-care program.

Ruth Hawkins, chairwoman of the task force sub-committee which developed the recommendation, noted the declining population at the camp because of other alternatives and declining birth rate.

"The kids aren't there, and aren't going to be there," she told the board.

Noting that it is estimated implementation of the recommendation could save the county up to $200,000 a year, Mrs. Hawkins commented, "These are lean, hungry times."

Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald was all for accepting the recommendation.

"I believe what is said is true," he stated.

Supervisor Jean Fassler contended the proposal should be reviewed by County Manager M. D. Tarshes and Chief County Probation Officer Loren Beckley.

Supervisor John M. Ward said a "realistic timetable" should be established to accomplish the recommendation.

Beckley told the board that "homework needs to be done."

"He said he will be able to present facts and figures to the board by May 1, in time to "make a rational decision" during consideration of the 1966-67 county budget.

Ward said he also wants to see in the forthcoming recommendations some proposals for ultiamte disposition of the 19-acre facility.

The board also referred to the county manager for reports and recommendations two other proposals of the Task Force — that the nine handicapped adults now at the Day Care Center in San Mateo be transferred to the Children's Health Home in San Mateo, and that the Probation Department's use of private facilities for alcohol and drug testing be transferred to the Coroner's Office laboratory.

Transfer of the handicapped adults would result in a savings of $27,834 to the county compared to the 1975-76 budget of $49,563, or $47,512 compared to the 1976-77 budget requested by the County Schools Office, which operates the handicapped program under contract with the county, the report says.

The Children's Health Home would provide day care and a school atmosphere for multi-handicapped adults over the age of 21 whose physical and psychological disabilities prevent their attending any other program, according to the report.

The board directed Tarshes to report back within 30 days with a plan for implementation of the recommended change.

In its recommendation concerning the drug and alcohol testing, the task force reports that under present arrangements the Probation Department sends its alcohol and drug tests on probationers to a firm in Walnut Creek. Some 900 tests are done each month, and it is estimated that the program would cost some $30,000 during the 1976-77 fiscal year.

The task force recommends that the Coroner's Office hire a technician at a cost of $14,160 in salary and benefits to do the testing. The salary, plus $7,020 in costs would total $22,101 a year, saving the county more than $8,000, the report states.

Tarshes said the proposal "may well have merit" and is well worth looking into at budget time. However, he added, he had heard that Coroner Paul Jensen said it may take more than one person to do the testing.

Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. expressed concern that consideration of many of the task force's recommendations are being proposed for consideration at time of consideration of the county's 1976-77 budget.

"I don't know how many more recommendations are coming," the supervisor stated, "but if we wait until budget time we're going to have them all concentrated."

John Dern, chairman of the task force, concurred, stating it would be "tough" to give attention to the recommendations if they are concentrated at budget time.

"If we're rushing," Dern said, "it's the amateur's urge to get on with it."

Ward said the recommendations may be upsetting the status quo of the county.

Today may belong to the Irish and their beloved St. Patrick, but the Italians refuse to be overlooked and so it is that the Mary's Help Hospital Guild will observe St. Patrick's Dav with a luncheon featuring lasagne!

The Westlake Community Center meeting room, 145 Lake Merced Blvd. is the locale for the Bingo Lasagne luncheon being staged to raise money for the guild's Christmas boutique. Mrs. Lillian Bertucci has been chairing this event.

"SOCIAL JUSTICE" will be the topic of the keynote address being given tomorrow evening by Father Eugene Boyle at the first meeting of St. Andrew's Catholic Church's discussion series on Liberty and Justice for all.

Sister Irmalyn Benkert, Director of Education for St. Andrew's Church, has arranged for this bicentennial year topic to be thoroughly researched by group members during four meetings. Following the opening session tomorrow, the series will be moderated on consecutive Wednesday evenings by the Rev. Mr. Thomas Rolle, deacon. All of the sessions will begin at 8 p.m. in the church, 1571 Southgate Avenue, Daly City.

DR. LEE DOLSON of the San Francisco Board of Education will be the guest speaker at the Balboa Alumni Association board of directors meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Everyone knows about Captain Horatio Hornblower and the African Queen. But how many of you know Poo-Poo and The Dragons? All three are the creations of author C.S. Forester!

Not only will the secret life of Poo-Poo and his friends be revealed on March 25 but many little known facts about Forester will be discussed when Commander John Dale Pyle Hodapp, Jr., one-time literary advisor to the late author, will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Friends of the Daly City Library.

Mrs. Emmett Tierney, publicity chairman for "the Friends," reports that this month's meeting will be held at 10 a.m. on Thursday, March 25 in the Coral Room of the Westlake branch of the Daly City library.

Mrs. Wayne Jrvis and her committee will serve coffee to those attending the Hodapp talk. Following the meeting a no-host luncheon, honoring the retired naval officer, will be held in the Tea Tree Restaurant.

Mrs. Joseph Abruzzo is still accepting calls for reservations to the Spring Fashion Show being sponsored by the Daly City Civic Ballet.

The benefit will be April 13 in the Franciscan Mobile Country Club. Fashions will be provided by "The Fashion of Westlake." Mrs. Robert Brizuela is the show chairman and Mrs. Vincent Rigoni the co-chairman.

A visit to the "Last Supper" reproduction in wax and a ride on the historic merry-go-round on the boardwalk also are planned.

For information, contact Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburg, 355-2184.

A $1. entry donation is requested. Proceeds from the contest will help support the local society's rehabilitative programs for handicapped children and adults.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

The Lenten season means meatless meals on Friday for many people. Therefore some recipes using fish are in order right now.

ELEGANT FILLET OF SOLE

6 medium slices sole
½ cup lemon juice
4 green onions, chopped fine
4 Tbsp. chopped parsley
1 can cream of mushroom soup
Pinch tarragon
One-third cup white wine
Butter
Salt and pepper to taste
Parmesan cheese

Marinate the sole in the lemon juice 15 minutes. Place the fillets in a buttered flat casserole, sprinkle with the onion and parsley. Fold fish in half.

Combine the soup, tarragon, wine, salt and pepper. Pour over the fillets. Dot with butter. Sprinkle lightly with Parmesan cheese.

Bake in 350-degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Serves 6.

This recipe combines that old faithful, tuna, with spaghetti to make a colorful and tasty dish that serves four generously.

TUNA TETRAZZINI

¼ pound spaghetti, uncooked
2 cans tuna
¼ cup chopped pimento
¼ cup chopped green pepper
1 small onion, diced
½ cup water
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1½ cups grated sharp cheese

Break the spaghetti, cook and drain. Place the drained tuna, pimento, pepper and onion in a 2-quart buttered casserole. Combine the water, soup, and one cup of the cheese and blend with the vegetables. Add the drained spaghetti, and mix well. Salt and pepper to taste.

Sprinkle top of casserole with the remaining half cup cheese and bake in 350-degree oven about 45 minutes, until vegetables are tender.

Navy Man To Discuss Novelist

Retired U. S. Navy Commander John Dale Pyle Hodapp Jr. will discuss C. S. Forester, author of the novels that gave the world the British romantic naval hero Captain Horatio Hornblower, for The Friends of the Daly City Library and their guests at 10 a.m. March 25 in the Coral Room of the Westlake Library.

Forester studied medicine for a while, but like Somerset Maughan and D. J. Cronin, the call to write drew him from the scientific field. The year 1926 saw the publication of the mystery novel "Payment Deferred," which, when dramatized, established the reputation of the actor Charles Laughton.

The character Captain Horatio Hornblower was introduced in 1937 in "The Happy Return," followed soon by "Flying Colours" and "A Ship of the Line." The naval hero of the Napoleonic Era won for Forester the James Tait Black Memorial Prize for Literature.

Among other works of Forester are additional Hornblower books (including the last, "Hornblower During the Crisis," which appeared posthumously in 1967), "The African Queen," "The Captain from Connecticut," and "Rifleman Dodd" and "The Gun" (two novels of the Peninsular campaign).

Book Review Chairman Mrs. Joseph Canada will accept at the review reservations for a no-host luncheon honoring Commander Hodapp which will be held following the event at The Tea Tree Restaurant, 250 90th St., Daly City.

Career Search Course Offered

Have you caught yourself daydreaming about another job, scanning the want ads, reading travel posters with a faraway gleam in your eyes? Your job doesn't pay enough or it isn't challenging enough? Maybe you're ready for a move to a new career.

A new, no fee service has been designed for people involved in a career search Wednesday evenings, 7-10 p.m. at the Westmoor Adult School.

This service assists in self awareness and appraisal. Using a combination of evaluation interest and skill tests, students gain insight into their needs, satisfactions, and goals that lead to job success. Basic skills will be evaluated. Counseling will be both individually and in groups.

This counseling service offers a place and resources to begin a career search. It starts March 24 in the Career Center of the Westmoor High School Library.

PG&E Warns Managers of Apartments

Apartment managers in the San Francisco area were cautioned recently by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. to require positive identification of any person who claims to be representing PG&E.

The warning followed a series of complaints this week from apartment managers who said a black male, 28-30 years of age and about five feet eight inches tall, had entered apartment buildings on the pretext of performing work for PG&E.

Instead, in at least two instances, theft was the motive.

All PG&E employees carry identification cards bearing the employees' photograph laminated in plastic.

A customer who is suspicious of a person allegedly representing PG&E should immediately notify the police or the nearest PG&E office.

Talk Set On East

"How East and West Do Meet on the Middle Way," a discussion of the philosophy of Buddhism as it relates to modern life, will be given by Ernest Schwarcz March 23 at 7:30 p.m. in the Serramonte Library community room, located at 70 Wembley Drive, Daly City.

Ernest Schwarcz, who is in charge of the Hispano-American section at the Serramonte Library, has traveled widely and has studied and lectured extensively on the subjects of philosophy and comparative religion.

Le Pacini

We dislike using up this space with apologies, but feel we must, in this case. And for once, it isn't our fault.

All writers, you see, must learn to live with what is known in the trade as "typos," or, typographical errors. Especially newspaper-type writers, because newspapers are mass-produced and can't possibly be as well copy-read as can books, monthly magazines, etc.

It always hurts when a typo brings in a letter or two from professional fussbudgets who get their kicks out of accusing professional writers of being ignorant because they apparently don't know the difference, for example, between "to" and "too."

You don't like people to think of you as not knowing the language you write, but on the other hand, such frustrated copyreaders aren't important enough to fret about.

But we are really made to look silly a couple of weeks ago by somebody who either has a sense of humor or wasn't alert, and it wasn't a matter of simple "typo," so we feel we must explain.

But before that, please be reminded that this column appears in The Post, Coastside Chronicle, San Bruno Herald, et al, and that the following mistakes were made only in The Post. So please bear with us, Coastside Chronicle, San Bruno Herald, et al, readers.

The first mistake was simple but was potentially devastating for a group of people who, thank goodness, have a sense of humor. All it amounted to was that what we had advertised as the upcoming "Mission High Athletic Alumni dinner," came out in print as the "Alumnae" dinner, and it wasn't a typo, because the same mistake appeared twice.

"Alumnae," of course, is the Latin plural word for a female who has attended a particular school, college or university. And as we all know, hopefully, Mission High School athletes are historically anything but feminine. Such a mistake might have caused us a punch in the nose.

The second mistake was more complicated, because it was a mistake of an attempted CORRECTION of a mistake. About a month ago, in reviewing the San Francisco cable TV sports show of Daly City resident Ken Dito, we mentioned that his telecasts even extended to explanations of what constitutes good conformity in show dogs.

The original mistake came out, "what constitutes good conformity in shows." It was an obvious typo and, we explained it. Except that the explanation came out, "What constitutes good CONFORMING in show dogs." We hope, this clears it up once and forever.

Speaking of the Mission High athletic ALUMNI dinner, it was interesting, as usual. One of the highlights of this one was a particularly hilarious hours-long recounting of minor league adventures (in the '50s, the days when big league clubs had HUNDREDS of minor league francheses) by San Francisco fireman Joe Delfino, who was in the Yankee chain, and former Dodger chattles, Rich Barry, now a Campbell truck driver, and Ron Shirley, a Pacifican who sells furniture in Serramonte.

Unfortunately, virtually all of the stories are unfit for a family newspaper, and hardly any of them had anything to do directly with baseball. Well, there are a couple of them we can relate.

Roomies Shirley and Barry were on their way to spring training in Florida, with a layover in Chicago.

Shirley, a city kid, had never been to Florida and decided that he would enter first class, looking like a native. So he donned an Hawaiian shirt and Bermuda shorts, stored the rest of his gear in the airplane's baggage compartment, and boarded, secure in the knowledge that he had done it up right.

Then came the layover in Chicago, at night. When the plane landed, Shirley looked out the window and gazed into the glow of the lights on the wingtips. "Hey, Rich," he remarked to Barry. "You ever see anything like that? Looked at all the moths flying around out there."

Barry, only slightly more sophisticated, dressed in a conservative business suit, agreed with Shirley that it truly was a phenomena. But Barry had recognized the flying white things as snow flakes, and decided to keep the information from Shirley.

So there was Shirley, disembarking from the plane in a Hawaiian shirt and Bermuda shorts into the teeth of a blizzard!

And then there was the time that Barry decided that third base coach Whitey Wietelmann wasn't serious enough about the game, because he would showboat for the crowd during an inning by balancing a bat on his nose.

Rookie Barry figured that if Wietelmann could be that cavalier about the game, then he, Barry, could at least catch up on some of his reading. So one day he brought his mail to the park and read it in the dugout between innings.

Needless to say, Wietelmann could not see the correlation, and Barry was suspended for a month. "And that damned Wietelmann," notes Barry, "just kept right on balancing the bat on his note the whole time I was gone."

Imagine what Marvin Miller could have accomplished in those days!

Two guys from Poly High crashed the party — Frank Strazullo, who once hit over .600 in the San Francisco High School League and now runs the Roundtable Pizza softball enterprises — and Bob St. Clair, who made All-American at USF and All-Pro with the 49ers, and now runs for political offices.

The joint was so crowded with former jocks that it was almost impossible to make it to the men's room.

At one point we asked St. Clair to make believe we were Hugh McElhenny and lead intereference for us. Now we know how relieved Mcelhenny used to feel with St. Calir blocking for him.

If anybody resented Poly High guys at a Mission party, they shouldn't have. What the hell, Mission has been using Poly's building for four years now, or since the earthquake proofing began in San Francisco high schools.

LOCAL NOTES:

A recent issue of the Sporting News listed San Francisco State kicker Rich Faulk as one of the pro scouts' prime prospects for drafting, if the NFL ever gets around to it.

Jefferson High coach Joe McGrath announces that he is formulating plans for the First Annual Alumni Benefit Dinner Dance to raise funds for the high school athletic fund which at the present time, Joe says, "operates on a bare bones budget without any bones."

The gala affair will take place on May 22 at San Mateo's Serra High School and work is now underway to prepare mailing lists of alumni, and a brochure explaining the project and with a reservation form. The affair will not be restricted to athletes and the committee requests that interested alumni send in their names and addresses so that they can be placed on the mailing list.

McGrath asks that all alumni who read this pass the information along to others who may not be a reader of this column, a prospect that is potentially enormous. In the meanwhile, send in your names and addresses to: Joe McGrath, Jefferson High School, 6996 Mission Street, Daly City.

RECORD IN THE MAKING

Byron Hawkins turned in a record in the 330 low hurdles for the MPL relays.

Hillsdale High's track team narrowly outpointed San Mateo to win the Mid-Peninsula Relays Thursday at Burlingame Field.

San Mateo picked up five event wins to Hillsdale's three, but the Knights made up the difference with place points for an 83 1/3 to 80 overall victory.

Capuchino's Greg Tafralis had the top individual effort of the day, a 170-9 throw in the discus relay.

San Mateo set a meet record for the distance medley relay, and Burlingame's Byron Hawkins ran the open 330 low hurdles in 39.5 seconds for another meet record.

Hillsdale was strong in the high hurdles and horizontal jumps. Steve Sykes, Ernest Sifel and Harold Ross won the high hurdles relay. Ron Walton, Bud Radovich and Dan Young took the long jump relay. Larry Metter, Paul Tuohy and Wayne Jackson finished first in the triple jump event.

Tigers Win NPL Opener

By JOHN MURPHY
Times Correspondent

Daryl Fazzio's sacrifice fly brought home Terra Nova's Dave Matas with the winning run as the Tigers edged host Westmoor 3-2 in nine innings Monday in the North Peninsula League baseball opener for both teams.

With one out and the bases loaded, Fazzio lofted a popup to short right field. Westmoor second baseman Tino Villar made a strong throw home, but it arrived an instant too late to catch Matas.

Westmoor put the potential tying run on second base in the bottom of the ninth, but Terra Nova hurler Gordon Shirley pitched himself out of the situation with two strikeouts.

The contest never would have made it into extra innings had it not been for some seventh-inning heroics by the Rams.

Trailing 2-0, Westmoor started things off with Jerry McNeil's single. Pinch-hitter Mike McLennan followedwith a solid base hit. TN then mishandled two consecutive Westmoor bunts; the Rams had the game tied with the potential winning run on third and nobody out.

But Shirley struck out the next batter, pinch-runner Mark Johnson was nabbed at home following a wild pitch and then Shirley recorded another strikeout to end the threat..

Terra Nova	100 010 001—3	8	3
Westmoor	000 000 200—2	5	3

In NPL action scheduled for today Serramonte was to meet Jefferson, El Camino was at Half Moon Bay and Oceana was at South SF.

Rolfes Fastest Swimmer of All

EACH YEAR at the conclusion of the Mid-Peninsula League swimming relays, four sprint races are held to determine the fastest swimmers over 35 yards (the length of San Mateo High's non-standard pool).

This year's winner in the senior division was Rick Rolfes of Crestmoor. Rolfes covered the distance in a record time of 15.7 seconds.

The previous record was held by former Hillsdale star Hans Van Arkel, who clocked 15.8. Van Arkel is now at Arizona State. He's a sophomore now; last year he qualified for the NCAA regionals.

San Mateo Coach Tom Holman points out that Rolfes eclipsed some set by fairly distinguished folks who have swum in the San Mateo pool — such as former Olympians Greg Buckingham and Tom McBreen.

EARLIER THIS month, in a story about the state high school wrestling tournament, The Post said that Crestmoor's Craig Schoene tied for the best finish ever by a local and best ever for the MPL with a fifth place.

We stand corrected — by more than one correspondent.

As Marilyn Cook of San Bruno succinctly points out:

"In the 1st Annual State Championships in 1973, Steve Cook of Crestmoor won a fourth place at 145 lbs., and John Fritz of Terra Nova won a fifth place at 175 lbs. In the 3rd Annual State Championships in 1975, Hector Vargas of Jefferson won a fourth place at 138 lbs., and Igor Vasey of Burlingame won a fifth place at 145 lbs.

RECENTLY I received a release from "Coach & Athlete" magazine concerning a selection of the 100 top prep football players in the country.

There were only a few players listed from California, so I deduced that this prep All-America roster was pretty much on the level.

But there are others I have to wonder about.

Coaches are asked to "nominate" athletes for a national honor list. And from the looks of things, with these operations very few nominations are turned down. The gimmick is this: thousands of athletes are honored, and each is given the opportunity to buy a commemorative book in which the names appear.

Meanwhile, releases are sent to hometown newspapers; whether the publishers hope to get free publicity, or whether they wish to legitimize their "selections," I don't know. But it all seems a trifle fishy.

It's probably a great way to sell books.

What's Going On Here?

Neil Glenesk

Neil Glenesk Heads Yank Pentathletes

Neil Glenesk, a Mills High and College of San Mateo graduate, is heading a squad of nine U.S. pentathletes into international competition in Europe this week.

Glenesk, 24, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Glenesk of Burlingame and a Specialist 4 in the U.S. Army, captured the North American Modern Pentathlon Championships at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, last week. He won over foes from the U.S., Canada, Australia, Mexico, Great Britain and Finland.

He tied for first in epee fencing, ran second to eventual runnerup Mike Burley in cross-country, was third in the swim, 13th in shooting and 19th in horseback riding.

The Chico State grad will compete in Auch, France, this Friday and Saturday, then move to Berne Switzerland; a site in the Netherlands; Heidenheim, Germany; plus London, Munich and finally Budapest, Hungary, winding up the tour May 13.

The U.S. National championships will be held in San Antonio June 17-24 to determine the Olympic team.

CSM Bulldogs Lose To Owls

College of San Mateo came up with some fine swims but it wasn't enough to overhaul visiting Foothill Thursday which won 70-39.

The Bulldogs got state meet qualifying times from Dave Breen in the 200 free (1:50.6) and Brad Bini in the 200 fly (2:08.1). John Rahm also had a good clocking of 5:02.6 in the 500 free.

Even though the loss drops the six-man Bulldog team to 2-3 in Golden Gate Conference action, all six have now qualified for the state meet.

The ex-Serra High swimmers won events for Foothill. Don Thornhill captured the 200 free in 1:49.8 and Chris Butler copped the 50 free in 22.6.

SSF Youth Soccer Win in Derby Day

March 7 was a great day for Youth Soccer as teams from the Westlake and South San Francisco Soccer Club competed for the Soccer Derby Day Friendship trophy. South San Francisco took it home for the first year, and will defend the trophy in 1977 at Orange Park, South San Francisco.

Some 160 youngsters — boys and girls — participated, attended by their families, friends and relatives. All the youngsters took part in two soccer skills contests: dribbling and goal shooting and free juggling. Participation awards went to all, and first to fifth place ribbons to the winners in each age category.

The spirit of friendly competition was evident all day, as new acquaintanceships were formed. The games went as follows:

Under 8's: Westlake 1 — South San Francisco 3

Under 10's: Westlake 1 — South San Francisco 0

Under 12's: Westlake 0 — South San Francisco 0

A very exciting game was played with standout performances by the goalies. Paul Newman very impressive for Westlake, as were Donald Osuna, Hugo Gonzales. The entire Westlake squad played well. In the closing minutes of the game Paul Abrahamsohn had the goalie beaten but his shot just went inches wide.

Under 14's: Westlake 1 — South San Francisco 5

Despite the loss, the Westlake team showed more cohesion than in their previous encounters against their local rivals.

Paul Luz, Sergio Morales, Tim Barna and Teresa Abrahamsohn stood out. The coaches' game appearance of Archie Robustoff of the U.S. National Team, playing for Westlake. It was announced that two visiting Candian teams will be hosted by the two clubs during the weekend of April 9 through 11.

Family Service Agency Considers Timely Needs

The Family Service Agency of San Mateo County has begun its 1976-77 membership drive.

The agency is designed to aid families.

In October of 1974, the agency's board of directors adopted a system of management by objectives and results in which the staff and board developed philosophy along with goals for the agency.

The philosophy of the agency is to assist the cause of personal, family and social well-being.

Here are the agency's goals:

●To make family and individual counseling services available to all persons of San Mateo County.

●To provide social services in San Mateo County which preserve, support and strengthen the life of the family.

●To cooperate and communicate with other agencies in order to coordinate existing services and to recognize and respond to what can be shown to be gaps in services.

●To provide for effective and efficient agency administration to achieve the highest quality services.

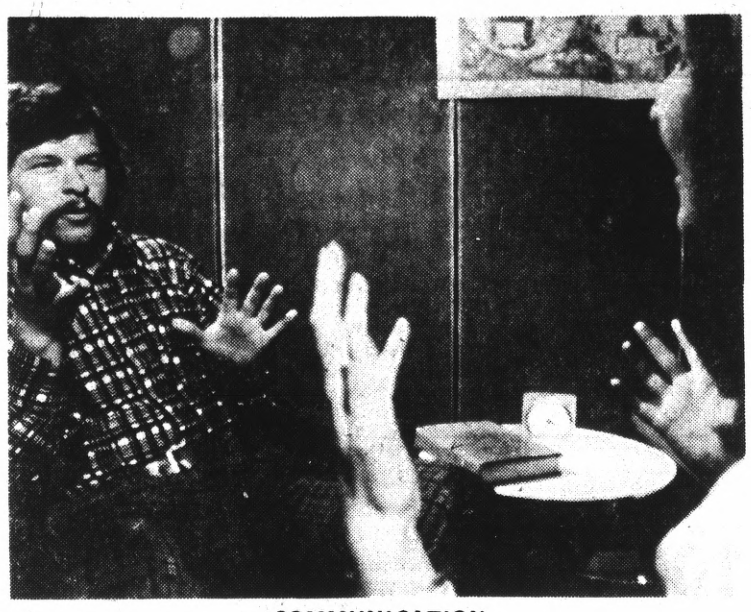

The agency provides a special social service for those persons who speak only Spanish.

Day-care centers also are maintained.

There is a speakers' bureau.

In a message to the public, the agency's president, Henry Nissen says, "The agency can look back to a year and a half of successful community service but it must be ever alert to the needs of the future in this rapidly changing social world."

Nissen says the agency is this year celebrating its 25th year of service in this community.

COMMUNICATION
Counseling and communication are among primary services provided by agency.

The executive director of the agency is J. Donald Cameron.

Financial support comes from a number of sources, including foundation grants and The United Way.

The agency's offices are located at 1870 El Camino Real in Burlingame.

There also are branches in Redwood City at 35 Renato Court and in Pacifica at 80 Eureka Square.

For more information about the agency and how to become a member, interested persons may contact officials at those offices.

Agencies Need Help

Volunteers are needed to fill a variety of jobs listed this week with the Volunteer Bureau-Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County.

MILLS HOSPITAL — Male and female aides to help in occupational and physical therapy, emergency rooms, pediatrics and nursing stations. Lobby desk jobs are available also. Orientation begins Saturday.

PARENTAL STRESS — Persons to help those in stress by talking to them. The first training session is scheduled Monday.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS — Volunteers to assist the 262 children and young adults registered to compete in the Ninth Annual Special Olympics for the retarded being conducted April 24 at Mills High School. Volunteers will assist participants by running and scoring events, acting as guides, providing refreshments, setting up for the parade and awards assembly and other tasks.

AID TO VICTIMS AND WITNESSES — Persons to help victims and witnesses of violent crimes. Training and experience provided by the agency.

Bookstore Writ Possible

Adult bookstore chain owner Earl Kuhns may seek a writ of mandate ordering the South San Francisco City Council to consider his use permit application much sooner than the scheduled July 21 public hearing.

Kuhns' attorney, Peter G. Keane, said he will determine within the next few days whether his client will seek immediate action on his appeal of a Planning Commission ruling that denies a use permit application for an adult bookstore at 107 Grand Ave.

City staff already has made it quite clear they don't want an adult bookstore — or anything like it — in their city now or ever.

Keane said a recent council action appears to be a political maneuver to delay the adult bookstore application as long as possible.

The City Council last week adopted a temporary ordinance prohibiting adult bookstores and 25 other kinds of businesses in the downtown area until June 30.

The ordinance was adopted so that the city planning staff can conduct a study of the proper uses of land in the city's business district, according to City Planner David Hale.

The Planning Commission and City Council cannot approve the 26 different types of businesses during the study period.

When the study is completed, the council could adopt a permanent ordinance banning adult bookstores and other controversial businesses.

The City Council set the hearing four months from now because it cannot approve a bookstore any sooner under the emergency ordinance.

"Circumstances would tend to indicate very heavily hat this is a political decision on the part of the City Council based purely on the basis of the fact they don't like what Kuhns is selling," Keane said.

More than 400 residents, most of them protesting the adult backstore, turned out Feb. 10 for the Planning Commission public hearing of Kuhns' application.

Keane said it is apparent the city is trying to create some type of legislation that will block the adult bookstore.

"The facts seem to show that the council intentionally set the appeal date with some attempt to frustrate the normal process of appeal," the attorney said.

Keane said Kuhns could seek a writ of mandate from the San Mateo County Superior Court ordering the City Council to hear the appeal sooner than the scheduled date. Such a court order, he said, could be based on the grounds the council's hearing date is arbitrary.

City Planner Hale has said that the downtown zoning study had been planned for several months, although Kuhns' application had some influence on the emergency need to prohibit certain businesses until June 30.

Other businesses prohibited until June 30 include massage parlors, palmistry studios, escort services, nude encounter studios, theaters and kennels.

City Manager Ed Alario said four months is not an unreasonable amount of time, and that the city's arguments would stand up in court.

Keane said the reception Kuhns has received in South San Francisco is identical to that he got when he opened an adult bookstore in the North Beach area of San Francisco, near Washington Square.

The store was blocked for two years before it finally was approved in the courts, Keane said.

"They (the community) delayed it as long as they could, until the courts let them in," Keane noted.

Concerning the South San Francisco use permit application, Keane reiterated comments he made to the protesting crowd at the Planning Commission meeting.

"It's only a question of time," Kuhns said. "None of the protesting surprises me at all."

Kuhns is leasing the vacant office on Grand Avenue in the meantime.

Pursesnatchers Growing Trickier

San Bruno police are warning shoppers at Tanforan Center and other busy shopping areas to be aware of a new ruse purse snatchers are using.

Two of the most popular methods for grabbing women shoppers' purses at Tanforan have come to light in recent days.

One method is for the robber to drive slowly up to a woman pedestrian in the parking lot area of a shopping center, lean out of the car (sometimes there are two suspects), grab a purse and speed off.

Another method is for suspects to bump a victim hard, knocking her off balance. They then grab the purse and run to a waiting car.

Police advise victims to be aware of these operating methods.

"If a person is a victim, get the license plate and description of the car. Be alert," a police spokesman said.

SSF Teachers' Proposal Called 'Smoke Screen'

A nine page negotiating proposal presented by the South San Francisco teachers is nothing more than "a written smokescreen," a parent said Thursday night.

Mrs. Margaret Blank said the California Teachers Association, the district's major teacher organization, did the public a great dissservice in not making a full disclosure of its negotiation intention as required by law.

The Certificated Employes Council (CEC) on Feb. 26 presented a brief proposal to the South San Francisco Unified School District trustees. It came as a surprise, since a 100-page document was expected.

The board has scheduled a special meeting at 7:30 p.m., March 18, to review the proposal. By law, the board must present its own counter-proposal seven days later.

Under the new state collective bargaining procedures, both negotiating parties must make their proposals public.

Mrs. Blank, however, said the teachers' proposal falls why short of a "public disclosure."

"The nine-page proposal leaves much to be desired," Mrs. Blank said.

Although it contains 44 articles, the document proposes no specific salary increases, she noted.

Instead, it outlines point-by-point the format for a more detailed proposal, including terms of the agreement and definition of positions.

Mrs. Blank read from a teachers' newsletter that a 100-page document has been prepared and that the teachers' union is deciding how to distribute it. The teachers seem to be keeping something from the public, she said.

The newsletter article also said that by not providing the proposal at the district office, district personnel could be "kept in the dark" until March 18.

"I really can't see how next week's public hearing can be a true public disclosure," Mrs. Blank said.

Margie Shotton, CTA president, later said that the union is still working on the detailed proposal.

The nine-page document, she said, allowed the teachers to meet the deadline set under collection bargaining rules.

However, until the Bay Area cost-of-living increase for the period from March 1975-76 is known, the teachers cannot make a specific salary request, she said.

The teacher's salary proposal will be based upon — but not necessarily the same as — that cost-of-living index.

Mrs. Shotton said the CTA has a 66-pge rough draft prepared and the union leaders will be refining that document this weekend.

She also said she did not know who wrote the teachers' newsletter article, which she said was not accurate, for there never was a 100-page proposal, she said.

Superintendent Dr. Paul Nielsen said that the CTA informed him by letter it will make a detailed presentation on March 18.

Trustee Valerie Lambertson said that Mrs. Blank's point is well taken and that the board should schedule another public hearing after the release of the detailed proposal so that community members can study the document and ask questions.

Mrs. Shotton said she is uncertain if the CTA will be ready with the final negotiating proposal on March 18, although it is attempting to be.

In another matter, Mrs. Walter Drysdale, a community member, questioned the district for permitting administrators and teachers to hold more than one job at a time.

She said district employes are teaching adult school and summer school courses in addition to their regular day-time jobs and that it's unfair for them to do so.

The employes, she said, should be able to get by on one salary and allow unemployed teachers to take the part-time adult and summer school teaching jobs.

Meters 'Beheaded'

Some one is "beheading" parking meters along Mission Street in Daly City.

In the last two weeks, four meters have been sawed off six inches from the top and taken. Two other attempts have been made to cut off coin-operated meters.

"We can't figure out why someone would go to all that trouble. There isn't enough coins in there to make it worthwhile," Steve Aurellio said.

Whoever is responsible for the thefts is determined, police grudgingly agred.

"There's a heavy steel pipe connected to that meter that has to be cut," Aurellio noted.

'WELL DONE'

That's an often heard comment at the San Mateo County Easter Seal Society's Workshop in Burlingame. Here Timothy Foley, standing, the new workshop director, and Korol Salter, director of rehabilitation services for the workshop, encourage a client who is on his way to becoming a good employe for someone.

TRAINING

The San Mateo County Easter Seal Society gives handicapped men and women the opportunity to learn marketable job skills which can make them independent. They don't want charity. They want jobs they can do with efficiency and skill.

Building Useful Skills

It's ability — not disability — that counts.

That's the cornerstone formula for success which the San Mateo County Easter Seal Society is applying daily in its efforts to rehabilitate and restore to productivity 1,000 men, women and children who are residents of this county.

Every day scores come to the rehabilitation center and workshop located at 1764 Marco Polo Way and at 858 Stanton Road in Burlingame.

They come for specialized therapy, they come for specialized training, they come for hope and restoration of self-confidence.

And the services that the Easter Seal Society extends can become the most important factor in the life of a child or adult injured in an automobile accident , in some other mishap or as the result of a birth defect.

The stories of the help that the society has given over the years would fill volumes of hope.

One local resident, critically injured in an automobile accident last year found himself almost totally disabled. He had little functional use of his left arm and leg. His vision was impaired. He had a speech impediment.

After months of physical therapy, he began to recover use of his body. The next step was to become a wage-earner again.

He enrolled in the Easter Seal Society Workshop, located at 858 Stanton Road in Burlingame.

Here the trainee becomes an "employe client." The goal is to train him for a job.

"The big job is to build confidence and knowledge in the fact that someone who faces a handicap doesn't have to give up, that he or she can do as good a job, if not a better one, than any person they will be working next to," comments Timothy Foley, the new workshop director.

Most of the "employe-clients" stay in the workshop from a few months up to two years. It's a great day when one of the clients leaves the workshop to go to an outside job.

Foley relates, "One young man recently told us, 'I thought my problem was insurmountable until I worked at the workshop just one day. I realized I was able to function much more than I was ready to admit. When I saw how hard people were working to become independent, I felt a little ashamed.'"

Foley added, "People here want work not charity."

Among the other services offered by the society are vocational evaluations and survival skills.

The latest in technical testing methods to determine ability, aptitude and behavioral patterns are analyzed.

According to Fred Eikenbury, the vocational evaluator, this latest service is believed to be the only one of its kind offered by such an agency.

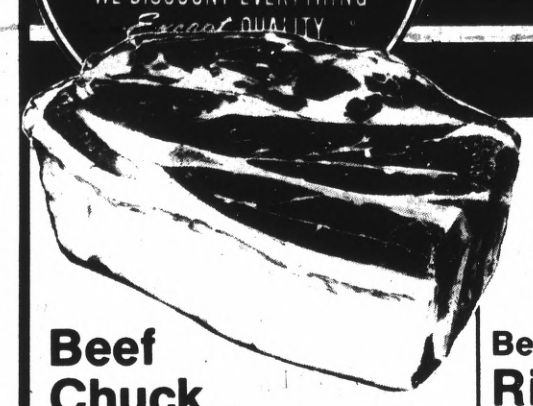

One of the bonuses of the testing program, Eikenbury says, is that it helps people discover new things about themselves and take a more

D.A. Seeks Split Office

Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson has announced that he again will attempt to have his office split.

He will ask the Board of Supervisors to place the issue on the November ballot.

Sorenson is seeking to split the administrative functions of the office, with a district attorney handling criminal matters and a county counsel handling civil matters. He presently administers both.

Voters rejected the issue in 1972, and the supervisors refused to put it on the ballot in 1974, citing Sorenson's talents at handling both functions.

In a memorandum to the Board of Supervisors, Sorenson renewed his long-standing position that one person cannot property administer both functions.

"Boiling it down, it amounts to the fact that a department head can only give personal attention to a limited number of responsibilities and still control and direct these responsibilities," Sorenson said. "Delegation of authority can often mean abdication of responsibility and this is to be avoided at all costs."

Among numerous points he raised in support of his position, Sorenson said, "The laws are changing so rapidly and the import of such changes is so serious in both the civil and criminal areas, that I must be up to date on all aspects in order to supervise my management personnel and insure the formation and direction of office policy in accordance with such laws."

He said, in essence, that a split would allow more attention to those and other functions.

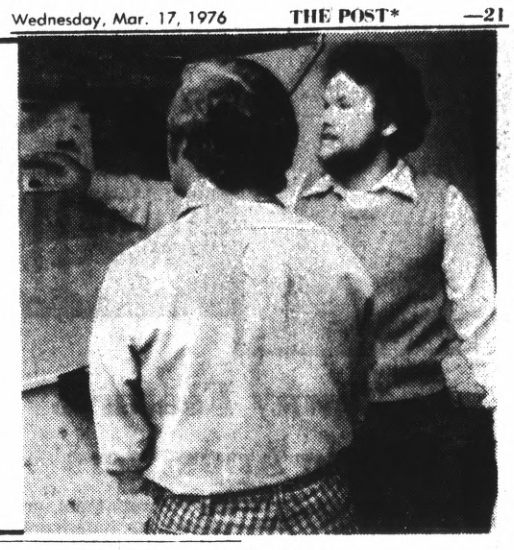

If the issue is put on the ballot, Sorenson predicted voter approval.

He said this time he would conduct a public campaign.

"In 1972, I didn't conduct any public campaign, and one newspaper opposed the proposal and editorialized against it. I'm confident that this resulted in the defeat."

The newspaper which opposed the split was The Times.

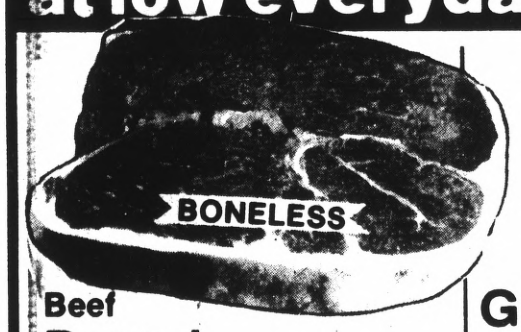

If passed in San Mateo County, the county counsel would be an appointive position by the Board of Supervisors, while the district attorney's position would continue to be elective.

'WHAT CAN YOU DO BEST?'

positive look at their goals. The California State Department of Rehabilitation and other agencies in the county ask the Easter Seal Society for help in obtaining individual evaluations. Sometimes it takes from seven to 10 days to thoroughly test an applicant.

In its survival skills training program, the workshop trains people to use a phone despite a handicap, to use public transportation, to buy the right foods on a minimum budget. "Many things the average person takes for granted must be learned or relearned by an individual who is handicapped.

Lee Mason, executive director of Easter Seal, emphasized, "We need the general public's awareness of the work we do, and of their support— moral and financial.

Right now, Mason added, the society is launching its yearly fund-raising drive. He appealed to the "people of San Mateo County to be as generous as they can. They have always been responsive, and now more than ever we need their help."

He emphasized that 96 cents out of every donated dollar stays in this county to help the more than 1,000 men, women and children who come to the Easter Seal Society for help.

Outdoor School Lawsuit?

A suit may be filed next week seeking to nullify the agreement by the San Mateo County Board of Education to purchase a 174-acre outdoor education site on the contention the board doesn't have the authority to enter such a contract.

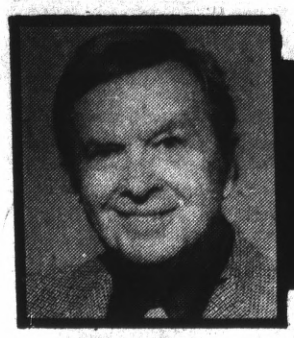

Attorney Gerard Wagstaffe, retained by the County Board of Supervisors last August to represent the county's intervention in a suit seeking to block the purchase, said today it appears that when the supervisors surrendered several powers to the Board of Education in 1966 it did not include the power for the Board of Education to purchase real property.

He still is in the process of researching the matter, Wagstaffe said, and hopes to reach a "full conclusion" early next week.

If the suit is filed, the attorney stated, it will ask the Superior Court to decide if the Board of Education acted within its powers in entering the agreement to purchase the site adjacent to County Memorial Park at a price of $290,000.

EXERCISE

Navy Fireman Apprentice Earl G. Harper, 18, son of whose wife Melodie Ann is the daughter of Mrs. Martha M. Yancy of 960 Stoney Ct., Millbrae, is taking part in a five-nation naval exercise off the California coast as a crewmember of the aircraft carrier, USS Enterprise. Named "Valiant Heritage" to commemorate America's Bicentennial, the exercise involves 41 ships, 200 aircraft and more than 18,000 men. The eleven-day exercise, including forces from Australia, Canada, New Zealand, the United Kingdom and the U.S., is designed to test the ability of the allied navies in joint operation.

Castaway Features Exotic Appetizers

Dinner guests at the Castaway, Coyote Point, are offered quite a selection of pre-dinner appetizers. Shrimp Cocktail, Rumaki, Hawaiian Glaced Ribs and Tahitian Fried Prawns are all tasty choices, plus there's a large platter aptly described as "South Pacific Tidbits." . . . Nick's, The Moonraker, and Captain Charles are beachside restaurants offering vista views of the Pacific Ocean through picture windows. People from all around the Bay Area seek out these Pacifica restaurants for intimate dining and special parties . . . Being an award-winning restaurant since 1950 is a record Scotty Campbell's cherishes with pride. Co-owner Mary Lou Fox invites all who haven't visited this Redwood City restaurant to enjoy dinner served in a medieval atmosphere of an old Scottish castle. Service seven nights a week . . . Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant has been a Peninsula tradition for many years. Vince Licata first opened a modest business in the 1940's, and developed it into the "Fisherman's Wharf of the Peninsula." . . . Lehr's Greenhouse Garden restaurant in San Francisco is a popular gathering spot for radio and television personalities. Seen dining amidst the flowers, plants and trees the other evening was Jerry Jensen, ace newscaster for KGO-TV.

HAPPY ST. PATRICK's DAY

Wearin' o' the Green Celebrations Today

A big celebration is planned for today (St. Patrick's Day), at Beardsley's. On this "Wearin' o the green" day Pat Finnegan, Jack O'Brien and Les O'Hylton, proprietors of this lively Burlingame restaurant, will be featuring some Shamrock specials from 4 p.m. on (the regular luncheon menu will also be available; dinners will not be served). You're all invited to enjoy Chef Al Evans' Irish Stew and Irish Soda Bread, compliments of the house. In addition, there will be a special price on Irish Stingers, Harp Irish Beer and Irish Coffees. The fun will include Irish records from 4 to 9 p.m. and piano bar singalongs of Irish tunes from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. So begorra, Beardsley's is the place to be on March 17 . . . Even the Irish appreciate good country and western music, which is why you'll find so many Irishmen toasting at The Eagles Club on Friday nights, when Sunnybrook entertains . . . Besides being a top-notch restaurateur, Enrico Romano is a civic-minded gent who can usually be counted on to help promote projects in Rockaway Beach, the home of his famous Romano's restaurant.

Henry Duetsch New Food & Beverage Mgr.

Henry Duetsch, a native of Hamburg, Germany, has been appointed new Food and Beverage Manager of the Rodeway Inn, in South San Francisco, it was announced by General Manager Erik Pedersen. Prior to joining the Rodeway Inn management team, Duetsch was a part of the Stickney's organization . . . It may be St. Patrick's Day, but it sounds like July Fourth in Barney's Casino and the South Tahoe Nugget, what with the new slot machines ringing out "Jackpot!" New equipment for "Entertainment the Nevada Way" is a customer pleaser. 24 hour restaurant service in Barney's is an added convenience, as is the "All you can eat" breakfast and dinner program at the South Tahoe Nugget. Bonus-coupons for both clubs are available in Vallejo at Terry's, Howard Johnson's, Nikko's, Cindy's (on Highway 80), and the Colony Kitchen (on Highway 50) . . . Newest drink sensation at the new Phil Lehr's Steakery in the bottom of the San Francisco Hilton Tower is the Suntory Royal Cloud. It's a smooth blend of equal parts of Suntory Royal Special Reserve Whisky, Galliano and cream . . . Tanforan Park's Garden Restaurants, located on the lower level of the Tanforan Park Shopping Center, San Bruno, offers nine different menus — and all feature moderate prices. Smart shoppers will take advanoage of the "dinner coupon" found in today's "Bright Lights." Its valid only during the evening hours and offers a 50 cent savings on purchases over one dollar.

. . . Irish whiskey for 35 cents, corned beef and cabbage featured all day for $2.85 and the possibility of live entertainment will be the enticement on St. Patrick's Day at The Shadows in downtown San Mateo. Prices for other spirits will also be lowered for the occasion . . If you're thinking about headin' for the Bit of England, in Burlingame today, take a tip and "reserve space" now. It stands to reason that countless Irishmen and friends will be on tap for the big St. Patrick's Day bash. The corned beef and cabbage feast begins at 7 p.m.

New Version of Jet Introduced at Airport

A new and smaller version of the Boeing 747 superjet was introduced to service Thursday by Pan Am, at San Francisco International Airport.

According to Pan Am spokesman Willard Marsh, the "747-SP" will first be used on transcontinental segments of Pan Am's round-the-world flights. In April, it will be introduced to trans-Pacific flights between Los Angeles and Tokyo.

The 747-SP is 47 feet shorter than standard Boeing 747s, and 50,000 pounds lighter. With a larger tail and some other modifications, the "special purpose" plane is expected to provide greater fuel economy and greater range, permitting longer non-stop flights than possible with current planes.

The 747-SP will seat approximately 100 fewer persons than larger 747s, and is expected to be used on routes which are not heavily enough travelled to support the larger planes.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER
John Dommers, specialist in environmental education, will be a keynote speaker at seminar.

Animals, Children Together

A seminar on shaping children's attitudes towards animals will be held March 30 from 7 to 10 p.m. at Peninsula Humane Society's education room, 12 Airport Blvd., San Mateo.

Enrollment will be limited to 50 and the registration fee is $5 for the seminar entitled "Thinking, sharing, caring: Using Animals in Education."

John Dommers and Charles Herrmann, leading educators with the Humane Society of the United States, will conduct the seminar. Dommers is a specialist in environmental education and has published a four-book series on this topic.

Herrmann is author of many short stories and books for children. Persons interested in making reservations for the seminar should contact Ann Velez, Education Coordinator at Peninsula Humane Society, 12 Airport Blvd., San Mateo, 94401.

CC Teachers Ask Pay Hikes

A salary proposal representing increases estimated at $1,169,786 was presented to the San Mateo Community College District trustees by the district's Certificated Employes Council at the regular meeting of the board at the College of San Mateo Tuesday night.

The board agreed to respond at its next regular meeting March 24.

Chairman William Rundberg told the trustees the CEC proposes, on behalf of the faculty, five major area improvents. They are.

1. An 8½ per cent increase in the existing day, evening and summer salary schedules, computed to cost $1,151,225.

2. The establishment of a dental plan for all retired personnel.

3. The district to pay the anticipated increased costs of fringe benefits, set at $108,538.

The trustees immediately noted that the fringe benefit cost could change according to other factors in the contract proposals.

The dental plan cost was assessed at $10,023.

4. Establishment of an early retirement system permitting teachers to retire but assuring them employment as consultants or part-time teachers in the district until age 65.

5. With the exception of the items affected by these proposals, the CEC noted, Chapter III of Policies and Procedures will remain unchanged until a contract has been negotiated under collective bargaining.

The amiable attitude that prevailed on both sides Tuesday night was assessed by one observor as a product of the collective bargaining situation.

It was pointed out after the meeting that both faculty and district are eager to agree on a contract soon because it is anticipated that with new phases of the collective bargaining law recently passed by the legislature becoming active, a prolonged standoff by teachers organizations seeking to become the official collective bargaining agent is possible.

With all of the state's school and college districts involved it might be months or a year before the dust settles. Those who get their contract through now could avoid this, one expert said.

In another area of employe relations the board heard a report from Chancellor-Superintendent Glenn P. Smith urging adoption of a single hourly salary schedule for certain part-time certificated employes.

Smith pointed out that three different rates of pay for teachers now exist — one for those in the day colleges, one for those in the evening colleges and a third for those teaching in the summer session.
